Milan has all the hallmarks of a memorable European city break: great restaurants, world-class galleries rich in art and history, excellent bars (this is the hometown of Campari, after all) and outstanding espresso.

The northern city's agreeable climate makes year-round visits more appealing than in some of Italy's more southerly cities, while its location puts Lake Como and the Italian Dolomites within easy reach for a two-center vacation. Or, stay put and spend your days embracing the ritual of aperitivo, strolling the cobbled streets of the city center, and exploring landmarks including the Duomo and Galleria Vittorio Emanuele II.

But where to stay? Milan has no shortage of luxury hotels, with many of the world's biggest hospitality names holding a firm presence in the city. We've hand-picked the very best hotels in Milan, including the top suite to book at each one.

Portrait Milano

Portrait Milano occupies the former Archbishop's Seminary in the heart of Milan's Fashion District. Entered through a Baroque archway between Corso Venezia and Via Sant'Andrea, the hotel is arranged around a 32,000-sq-ft public piazza framed by 17th-century colonnades.

Dining is a major part of Portrait Milano. 10_11, named after the hotel's entrances at Via Sant'Andrea 10 and Corso Venezia 11, extends across a bar, restaurant, garden, and colonnade, serving everything from breakfast through to late-night drinks. The hotel is also home to international steakhouse dining concept Beefbar, with interiors by Humbert & Poyet inspired by traditional Milanese cafés.

The top accommodation, the three-bedroom Borromeo Suite, overlooks the hotel's garden. The trio of bedrooms are joined by multiple living areas, a private bar corner, and marble bathrooms, creating one of the hotel's most spacious options for families or larger groups.
