A Pair of Ferragamos

Fashion's Ferragamo family may have kicked off its empire with shoes, so to speak, but it's quickly expanding as a hospitality powerhouse on its home turf. Massimo Ferragamo, chairman of Ferragamo USA, owns the 4,000-acre Tuscan estate Castiglion del Bosco (www.castigliondelbosco.com), which this spring will launch a cooking school program devoted to Tuscany's "forgotten flavors." That's the cuisine your nonna (grandmother) would have made – from preserves to stock – if she had a kitchen garden planted with 180 varieties of fruits and vegetables. Back in Florence, the family's Lungarno Collection of hotels in May will add Portrait Firenze (www.portraitfirenze.com), a 34-suite riverside address channeling mid-century glamour that overlooks the famous Ponte Vecchio bridge.
